This is a generalize itinerary. Itinerary may change based on weather or availability.

We'll start off in Quito exploring the towering Pichincha Volcano in the morning before learning about some of Ecuador's first peoples in an ecological and archaeological park. Afterwards, we'll explore Quito's historic winding alleyways and corridors before dining with the best view of the city. Following a good night's rest, we'll explore one of Quito's most unique reserves where towering agaves dominate the landscapes and red bromelias speckle the grounds. Then we'll spend time in Otavalo's famous market boasting all sorts of goods ranging from textiles to silverwork featuring natural materials. Finally, we'll finish off the trip learning about the historic textiles and exploring some of Otavalo's natural wonders!
